It's been my pleasure and honor to observe the world's greatest Army in training and downrange on many occasions.

During these times, I've had the chance to interact with many Soldiers and their families.

I am deeply impressed by the consistent excellence you embody. You are not only the finest fighting force ever assembled, you are the most effective quick response humanitarian team in the world, providing essential aid to those suffering and in need.

Additionally, the sacrifices made by our wounded warriors and departed heroes who went into battle - not only to protect us, but to bring freedom and hope to strangers - are profound and must not be forgotten.

Our peerless military is the institution that allows all other national institutions to exist.

From a grateful American, Happy 236th Birthday to our Army!
